

Relational Line: The Disjunction of Sameness

O'DA Art Gallery is pleased to present Relational Lines: The Disjunction of Sameness; a group exhibition showcasing the works of three contemporary African artists, Anthea Epelle, Obinna Makata & Anthony Nsofor.

With a captivating body of work, all three artists in their individually distinct language depict their viewpoint of life. This showing covers commentary on political and social themes, to expressions of womanhood, strength and the simplicities of life. Each artist's use of colours and texture is emboldened by their well-defined choice of form and expressive lines. Obinna Makata's collages create a confrontational visual metaphor for a fractured cultural identity as bold strokes of acrylic and ink is folded and weaved into Ankara fabric. As Anthony Nsofor's work creates a new visual language to rewrite African ideologies, Anthea Epelle portrays sensual depictions of female portrait to elevate the beauty of the African woman. This group exhibition seeks to challenge the perception of contemporary culture by addressing the true nature of our human identity and presenting it in a renewed visual representation.
